Body of Boy Drowned Not Recovered.

After searching for more than three days for the body of Raymond Carr, who was drowned in Hinkston creek Friday afternoon, no trace of it can be found and dynamite will be employed today to raise the body from the stream.

The boy, who was about ten years of age, met the sad fate Friday afternoon about two o'clock, when he and his brother, Howard Carr, two years his senior, were feeding cattle back of the farm of his father, Mr. Elijah Carr, on the Steele's Ford pike, near Millersburg, this county.

The younger brother rode one of the horses close to the steep bank of the stream and in some manner slipped from the back of the animal into the stream which was at a high stage and running swiftly. The older brother made a heroic effort to save him and plunged into the stream, but the swift current carried him beyond his reach. He himself was in great danger of drowning but reached the shore safely and informed his parents of the accident which had befallen his brother.

Searching parties were put on foot and the stream dragged for some distance below the point where the boy was last seen, but the efforts to bring the body to the surface were without result. The parents of the boy are frantic with grief over the unfortunate accident.

Date Set for Trial.

Circuit Judge J. M. Benton announced Saturday that the cases of the Commonwealth vs. D. F. Deaton and others, charged with the murder of former Sheriff Ed Callahan, of Breathitt county, would be called at the special term of the Clark Circuit Court which begins March 31. This special term of court was called for the purpose of trying the men indicted on perjury charges.

Circuit Court to Resume Tomorrow.

Circuit Court which was adjourned Saturday by Judge Robert L. Stout that he could hold a special session of the Woodford Circuit Court will be resumed Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, at which time the case of the Commonwealth against Bev Dorsey will be called for trial.

Friday the case of the Commonwealth against Woodford Spears, under indictment for cutting with intent to kill resulted in an acquittal.

The grand jury which made a partial report Thursday will also be in session Wednesday when it is probable they will make a final report and ask to be discharged. In the partial report made to the court the grand jury returned eight indictments. Bench warrants were issued and served as follows:

Forrest Lawrence, murder, trial set for Wednesday March 26; Raymond Johnson, housebreaking; John Williams, housebreaking; George Richardson, forgery; Thomas Craven, two counts, shooting with intent to kill and carrying concealed weapons; Amanda Moore, malicious cutting and wounding.

Blue Grass Kicked Out By National Association.

Secretary J. H. Farrell, of the National Base Ball Association, in a letter directed to President Thomas Russell, of Mayeville, and club owners of the Blue Grass League, dismissed the Blue Grass from organized base ball.

The letter was received by President Russell Friday. The dismissal is the outcome of the efforts of the Blue Grass League to annex Covington and Newport to the circuit, and the suit instituted to test the five mile limit clause of the National agreement.

The suit for the injunction to restrain the commission from preventing the establishment of clubs in these cities is now pending in the Federal court and arguments are likely to be heard at any time. According to local baseball authority the ejection will be only temporary and that the card played by President Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, and the base ball commission only serves to strengthen the case which is now before the court.

President Russell immediately returned the league's membership fee to Secretary Farrell with the statement that the Blue Grass League had not withdrawn and had no desire to withdraw its membership from the National Association, and that the league held that, not yet having violated any provisions of the National agreement, the National Board had no legal right, or right by virtue of the National Agreement, to suspend the Blue Grass League from the National Association.

President Russell stated that further action by the league would be decided upon at the meeting of the league directors in Lexington next Wednesday. Local fans are strong in their denunciation of the action of Chairman August Herrmann, of the National Commission, and Secretary Farrell, of the National Commission, and are willing and anxious to back the league in a fight to the finish against these and other powers of organized base ball. The letter to President Russell is as follows:

To the President and Club Owners of the Blue Grass League—Gentlemen: As the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues of which the Blue Grass League has been a member since October 25, 1908, is a voluntary organization and recent correspondence with its officials indicate dissatisfaction on their part with some of the provisions of the National Agreement, under which our organization operates, I herewith return to you the membership fee of the Blue Grass League for 1913 by direction of the National Board. Notice thereof will be promulgated at an early date.

There is no desire or disposition on the part of the National Association or its officials to require your league to accept conditions or perform obligations which they regard as injurious to your interest.

Respectfully,
J. H. FARRELL,
Secretary National Association.

Negro Slayer of Mrs. Black Gets Death Sentence.

Justice sure and swift was meted out yesterday at a special session of the Woodford Circuit Court called by Judge R. L. Stout to Silas Williams, the negro charged with the murder of Mrs. Susan Black and the attempted assault upon Mrs. Lee Moffitt, at Troy, Woodford county, several weeks ago. The jury was out only one and a half minutes when it brought in a verdict of guilty and the punishment of the negro was fixed at death. Judge Stout followed the prompt action of the jury by passing sentence on the condemned man and fixed Friday, March 21, as the day of execution. Williams was taken to Eddyville yesterday afternoon.

Warrants Against Phoenix.

Forty-two warrants against the Phoenix Hotel Company, of Lexington, charging a violation of the State law by having quail in possession for sale were served on John McClintock, president of the company.

The warrants were sworn out before County Judge Scott by J. Quincy Ward, executive agent of the Game and Fish Commission of the State of Kentucky. Mr. Ward, accompanied by Charles E. Brewster, United States Government game expert of Washington, was in Lexington Saturday afternoon. Judge Scott has set the cases for trial for March 20.

The company was recently fined $5 on thirty counts for a similar violation.

Will Run Through Moneyless.

The board of regents of the Kentucky Normal School met at Frankfort Tuesday. President J. G. Crabbe stated that while the failure to secure interest-bearing warrants for the 1912 appropriation for the school leaves it without money except the small amount necessary to pay day laborers, the school will not close down. Provision dealers, he said, are willing to wait for their pay for dormitory supplies, and the teachers are making the best of the situation.

Eminent Professor to Lecture.

Prof. Martin H. Fisher of the University of Cincinnati, will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Treatment of Odema and Nephritis" before the Bourbon County Medical Society at their second quarterly meeting in the county court room Thursday evening, March 20, of this week at 7 p. m. This theory and its results have occasioned widespread discussion in the medical journals of the world. The lecture will be illustrated. Physicians from surrounding cities are expected to be in attendance. At this meeting the Chemical Society will be organized for study looking to use of the new hospital.

Will Test Law in Higher Court.

In view of the advice of the Attorney General of Kentucky to the Auditor of State to refuse payment of pensions to Confederate veterans until the constitutionality of the act granting the pensions has been passed upon by the Kentucky Court of Appeals, General Bennett H. Young, Commander in Chief of the United Confederate Veterans Association has announced that since there is nothing left to do but to test the question in the higher courts he will undertake the necessary legal steps without compensation for his services. The costs of the records will be borne by a number of Louisville veterans and General Young will have associated with him many veterans who are lawyers and also lawyers who are the sons of veterans from all parts of the state.

Gen. Young's announcement as made to the members of the association is as follows:

To the Confederate Veterans and Widows Seeking Pensions:

The Attorney General of the State has advised the Auditor to refuse payment of Confederate pensions until the constitutionality of the act granting the pensions has been passed upon by the Court of Appeals.

Many pensioners have consulted me about the best course to pursue. My opinion is there is nothing left to do but to test out the question in the courts. I am ready to take the necessary legal steps in this matter without any compensation of any kind whatever. I propose to associate with me in this matter many veterans who are lawyers and also lawyers who are sons of veterans and together we will do the best we can to assert your rights under the present law.

The following gentlemen have already volunteered and a large number of others will unite and we are hoping that it will turn out that it was rather a depleted treasury than the validity of the law which induced this litigation:

Hardin H. Herr, Samuel G. Tate, John C. Tate, M. W. Rippe, Joseph Lawton, Ray Mann.

The papers state that Judge Hazelrigg, an able lawyer and a true Confederate, has agreed to try out a case. No better man could be found to undertake the task, and we will aid him in every way to maintain the law.

BENNETT H. YOUNG.

Convict Helps Guard Out of Wreckage

The very circumstances which formed the basis for one of Irvin Cobb's stories, the escape of a prisoner (who was caught in a collision while being taken to the prison and was supposed to have been killed, occurred during the L. & N. wreck near Richmond Sunday, only the prisoner did not try to escape. Instead he dug the attending officer out of the debris and came on to Frankfort with him the next day.

Alex Carroll, Deputy Sheriff of Bell county, was on the train bringing Josh Brim, a youthful slave to the Frankfort reformatory to begin an indeterminate sentence of two to twenty-one years. The officer had just arisen from his seat when the crash came and he was hurled down the aisle. The car turned over on its side. Brim, unhurt, clambered out of the car window. His first thought, he said, was of his companion, and he hurried to the point about where he conjectured Carroll must be. He started digging into the wreckage and presently saw Carroll struggling to free himself from the weight upon him. Carroll was considerably bruised but able to walk.

Many growing girls in school or business are frail—delicate— anemic—lack energy and ambition and have thin blood. It is all unnatural and unless checked leads to serious and chronic ills. Nourishment, not drugs, is the law of reason to build strength—but when appetite is poor and digestion weak, ordinary foods do not nourish—then SCOTT'S EMULSION is necessary.

SCOTT'S EMULSION overcomes just such conditions; its tissue material enters the blood without digestive effort and makes it rich. It tones the whole system and starts the healthy action of cells throughout the body.

No man is Stronger Than his Stomach

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y. answers hosts of delicate questions about which every man or woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing.

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefulness and strength of mind or muscle depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which makes blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removing the poisons from the blood, and the various organs get rich, red blood, instead of being illly nourished. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over 40 years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, and a trial box will be mailed you.

MYSTERY IN A POCKET

By C. D. JAMES.

Usher one day not long ago shouted upstairs to Mrs. Usher that he found his watch was slow and that she had just five minutes to make the train to the golf club.

"Gracious!" wailed Mrs. Usher back at him, "I never can—there's a thin spot in the heel of my stocking right above the edge of my low shoes and it'll rub into a hole in no time. It's silk—"

"Take along another pair!" ordered Usher, gruffly. "You can change out there and there won't be a soul around and it's such a bully day—oh, come along!"

Thereupon Mrs. Usher came along, frantically struggling into a heavy coat and stuffing hosiery and handkerchiefs into her husband's pockets.

"There!" she said, triumphantly, when they had played nine holes, "Look at my stocking!" An unmistakable hole showed above the line of her low shoe. "What did I tell you?"

"You can change when we go in for luncheon," said Usher. "I left my coat hanging up in that little hall just outside the lunchroom—everything else has been shut up for the winter."

Mrs. Usher found the coat. There were two others next to it. Only a few hardy persons were playing golf in the nipping air. After a while she reappeared bearing in her hands a crumpled ball of brown silk, the discarded hosiery. Just as she reached her hand toward the overcoat pocket Usher called from the hall.

"Yes," she answered, "I'm coming!" and hastily rammed home the hosiery. Let it be said at this point that Usher's coat hung very close to the next one. The next one belonged to Benning.

That evening as Benning settled himself comfortably with the evening paper there was a little choking sound in the hall and presently Mrs. Benning stood before him tragically holding out something brown.

"Don't Look So Idiotic!"

"Huh?" asked Benning, peering at the brown thing.

"What, may I ask," demanded his wife, "are you doing with brown silk stockings in your coat pocket, Arthur? Kindly answer me that!"

She shook out the hosiery to its full and incriminating length.

"Don't look so idiotic!" she cried when she could stand the strain no longer.

"Why—why," stammered Benning, "I don't know a thing about them."

Whereupon Mrs. Benning went into hysterics and cried that Benning never had loved her anyway and what had she ever done that such an awful thing should blight her life?

"Darling," cried the frantic Benning, "let me explain!"

"Then explain!" blazed his wife.

"Good Lord!" groaned Benning, after a wild instant. "I can't! I—"

"I shall go home to mother," announced Mrs. Benning. "I shall tell the janitor to bring up my trunks."

The rest of that night Mrs. Benning held her outraged head very high while carrying things from the closets and bureau drawers to trunks, Benning alternately tagging after her, piteously expostulating, or sunk in the biggest armchair in an attitude expressive of complete weariness with the world.

"I know it sounds foolish," he moaned, "to say I don't know how the confounded things got there, but—"

"It certainly does!" Mrs. Benning assured him, frostily. "I at least gave you credit for more imagination."

It was just after Mrs. Benning had telephoned for a taxi in the morning that the phone rang and Benning stumbled to it.

"Hello!" said Usher's voice. "Say, have you by any chance got my wife's brown silk stockings in your overcoat pocket?"

"Here! Hurry!" yelled Benning, beckoning frantically to Mrs. Benning. "Come and listen to this!"

"I don't care!" said Mrs. Benning some moments later, when the crying and forgiving were over. "I never did like that Mrs. Usher, anyhow! And now, Arthur Benning, you can just set to work and help me unpack."—Chicago Daily News.

HAD CORNER IN KISSES

BY EDNA MAHLER.

Jane knew she was the ugly duckling of the family, and although her frocks were just as pretty and her hair ribbons of the lovely tints worn by her sisters, she did not command admiration.

Jane's hair was wiry, and although her mother "put it up" in curlers each night, the refractory tresses refused to form a ringlet halo about the little face. Elsie and Ruth had lovely curls which never "came out" when it rained; but Jane's did.

She longed to be pink and white and pretty, like her sisters, and each morning rubbed her little brown face so hard with the soapy cloth that frequently cold cream had to be applied to soothe the burning skin. Jane's feet and hands were large, and her skirts and sleeves too short to be of any use in concealing them. Realizing all these facts, Jane was shy. She hated parties and entertainments, where she had to sit alone against the wall and strive to look at ease, while the other girls had the best kind of a time.

When the invitation came from Ethel Simpson's mother, asking the sisters to a "fancy dress" party New Year's eve, Jane resolved to remain at home. Her mother, not understanding the reason for her little daughter's sudden dislike for parties, immediately started the costumes, and a day before the event the costumes were completed and tried on.

Elsie looked like a Dresden china "Bo-Peep," and Ruth was an equally dainty "Mary, Mary, quite contrary," but Jane did not need to ask of her glass,

"Mirror, mirror on the wall, Who's the fairest one of all?"

One glance told her the painful truth. She was all wrong as "Little Miss Muffet." The fluffy white cap with its blue bow called for soft, golden curls. The lovely frock of rose-sprigged dimity needed a plump neck and a rounded pair of arms and legs.

Why hadn't her mother provided a "Red Riding Hood" cloak, which extended to the floor? She could have wrapped herself up in this like a worm in its chrysalis.

Her mother was satisfied. She saw only the pretty costume, and knew that her "work was good."

Poor Jane! That party hung like the sword of Damocles over her head, and she wished that the box of chocolates she ate that day would make her so ill she could not go.

The next morning her head ached, and Jane grew more cheerful. Perhaps she would have a bilious attack, and Doctor Myers would prescribe calomel. That, she knew, would make her dreadfully ill. After breakfast and a morning spent building a snow fort, the headache had totally disappeared, and with it Jane's hopes for a few days in bed.

Her mother proudly dressed each one of her ducklings and sent them off to the party with a kiss and a wish for a "happy time." Jane's rather wistful countenance lingered with her for a moment, and she wondered why the child had become so strange.

The Simpson home was aglow with life, and as they entered the doorway the sounds of merriment issuing from the parlor made Jane long to escape. She followed the others upstairs to shed their wraps, like an automaton, and when Mrs. Simpson ushered them into the room she sought the loneliest corner and settled herself for the evening.

Ethel Simpson suggested that they play "Spin the Pan," and selected Elsie to number the boys while she numbered the girls. The number falling to Jane's lot was four.

Then the fun began. Ethel, Ruth and Elsie were the most popular girls at the party and proudly flounced up for their kisses as the nice boys called their numbers.

Jane's number had never been called and as each little girl jumped from her chair and rushed to catch the pan, she deplored her homeliness.

Then Teddy Brooks, the "red-head" boy in the crowd, called "Number four." With a gasp Jane rushed for the pan, and catching it, blushing held up her face for Teddy's kiss.

Then she spun the pan, and without thought and weakly said "Number nine." Teddy, grinning with pleasure, caught the pan, and when Jane was seated again shouted "Number four."

Jane realized he had not avoided her number as the other boys always did, and gleefully called "Number nine" again. Then Teddy yelled "four" and Jane followed with "nine," and thus they cornered the kisses until wild protests from the other guests brought Mrs. Simpson to the scene, and being a tactful woman, she suggested another game.

Teddy escorted Jane to supper and as they sat "good-night" a knowing twinkle gleamed in each pair of eyes.

When the "ugly duckling" awoke the next morning the New Year was greeted with a heart full of gladness, for with its coming she had discovered a friend who considered her a swan.

Sand Foundation of Glass.

Sand is the main constituent of glass, constituting from 52 to 65 per cent. of the mass of the original mixture, or from 60 to 75 per cent. of the finished product, after melting has driven off carbon dioxide and other volatile materials. On the quality of the sand depend the transparency, brilliancy and hardness of the glass.

GAVE PLACE TO THE MOTHER

St. Peter's Careful Computation of Benefits Conferred Resulted in Defeat of the Spinster.

St. Peter, at his gate, perceived two ladies approaching. He rose to greet them.

"Names?"

"Mary Smith, widow," said one.

"Jane Jones, spinster," replied the other.

"Occupation?"

"Suffragette speaker," said Jane.

"Just a mother," answered Mary.

St. Peter looked troubled.

"I've only room for one just now," he said. "It'll go to the better of you, two."

Jane looked pityingly at Mary.

"I," she said, "have been a successful speaker for my cause. I have stirred women up till they got the vote. Owing to their having the vote they have accomplished the passing of certain bills. These bills have benefited some two thousand human beings. I'm afraid that 'just a mother' here can't total anything to equal that!"

"I'm afraid I can't," sighed the mother. "I never did a thing except bring up my seven boys. They turned out well, but—that only makes seven human beings I've benefited."

She turned meekly away.

"Hold on," said St. Peter. She turned back. "What about those sons? What have they done for their kind?"

The mother's eyes shone.

"One discovered a new anaesthetic. One secured the passage of a bill which did good to hundreds. The other established a home for blind children."

St. Peter penciled down some figures.

The fourth led his regiment past a danger point and saved them all. The fifth is a parson, who lives with he preaches. The sixth is an artist, who has delighted hundreds. The seventh—well, he's busy bringing up his sons. His wife is a suffragette!"

"Come right in," said St. Peter.

"Your list totals two thousand and eleven!"—New York Times.

New "Missing Link"

An important find of human remains has been made in Sussex, England. It is part of a skull and jawbone, and will come to be known as the "Pit-down" skull. So far, it is believed possible, the remains belong to that immensely remote period when the North Sea was dry and the mastodon roamed the land; in short, to the Pliocene era. The skull is extraordinarily thick, nearly one-half of an inch. It has a good straight forehead, and undoubtedly had brain. The jaw seems to indicate, however, that there was no power of speech. There are merely two well worn molar teeth in place, but other things show that in life there were great canines and large front teeth. In this it differs from the famous Heidelberg skull, which is also apelike in form but human as to teeth.

It was found with mastodon and Pliocene elephant bones, and primitive flints; but these, Sir Ray Lankester considers, may or may not have been coeval. The skull is being restored. It seems to link man to a new species and confirm his near relation to the ape. The find was made by an amateur geologist, Charles Dawson, F. S. A.

Quite Good Interest.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie tells the following story with great relish. When his father was leaving his native country to settle in America he borrowed twenty pounds from a relative. The family had an uphill battle on the other side of the Atlantic, but, when the tide of prosperity turned with the son, he remembered his father's indebtedness, and determined to clear it off, together with its accumulated interest. He started by remitting the sum of twenty pounds, and for several years sent the same amount—a dividend equal to exactly 100 per cent. Returning to Scotland, the Pittsburgh ironmaster met his old relative.

"Well," said Mr. Carnegie, "having paid up a good deal of the interest, I should like now to clear off the principal."

"Ah, ay, Andrew, dinna ye fash fersel' about the loan! A'm perfectly satisfied with the interest."

"Ah, but I'm rich enough now, I think, to clear off the principal!" replied the millionaire.

"Dinna mind the principal, Andrew," said the relative, "it's very well invested as it is!"

Modern Dentistry Not Modern.

A medical authority has just stated a number of newly acquired bits of information that would seem to refute the proposition that modern dentistry is modern. Achievements of unknown dentists of ancient Egypt and Rome prove the contrary. Just who the dentists were, the historians do not always relate, but the results of their work have proved beyond a doubt that bridge work—on which we moderns specially pride ourselves—of the most skillful kind was done as long ago as six or seven centuries before Christ. In the tomb of Sidon, were found four incisors and two canine teeth in the jaw of a woman that were held together by gold wire, two of the former being transplanted teeth—what might be called crowns in this day—fastened in by gold wire. In the museum at Corneto, the ancient capital of the Etruscan federation, are to be seen several specimens of bridge work done by riveted bands of metal.

Air Purified.
The air of a cellar or any dark store room can be kept sweet by hanging lumps of charcoal in net bags. Every few weeks the charcoal should be taken out, made very hot and returned to the bags.

THEATRICAL.

SATAN.

Milton's "Paradise Lost" and Klypsok's "Messiah" were the two classics used for the first two parts of the moving picture classic "Satan," which will be exhibited at the Paris Grand on Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22. The theme of the five reels of interesting pictures is that of the history of Man. Through distant dim ages the pictures lead the audience and it is almost as if one had lived for countless years and watched the coming of kings and the falling of empires. Each scene is of a different era and all of it based upon biblical and historical facts. The first scene shows the waging of the battle between God and Satan and the defeat of the evil spirits, the descent of Satan to earth, which he makes his kingdom. The earth is subtle to his influence and ready to follow in crime and wickedness. Adam and Eve are the first to fall before Satan's work, and at his instigation Cain fashions the first weapon and slays his brother. The Messiah comes to earth in the second part and is quietly going about his way performing miracles, preaching the truth of God and working for the redemption of man. Satan is not yet through and having vainly attempted to taint the glorious soul of Jesus he bribes Judas to deliver the kiss of betrayal. Jesus in all his radiance walks forth from the tomb and once again Satan is defeated. The Ambrosic Company expended $200,000 in giving the wonderful drama a fitting presentation to the public. A special machine is carried by the company with expert operator in charge.

THE SPRING MAID.

"The Spring Maid," the attraction at the Paris Grand tonight, is a musical comedy at its best. The music is musically and of the haunting nature that makes an appeal to all classes. The comedy is irresistible and the whole piece is characterized by a brightness and a freshness and a spirit that pervades the playhouse. The instant the curtain rises on the first lively scene of the Carlsbad Spring Girls.

Here is a case of a widely exploited musical piece living up to its reputation. A pleasant surprise, surely, and those who enjoy amusement of the highest class cannot afford to miss this joyous little operetta.

The music is most tuneful of all recent importations and critics all over the country have declared it more pleasing than that of its Viennese sisters "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier." In the present production of "The Spring Maid" will be seen the famous original "Spring Maid" chorus and ballet, a group of young women who have achieved almost as much fame as the principals themselves for their remarkable good looks and ability to sing and dance.

HARRY LAUDER.

The season's event in Lexington will be the first appearance of Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, who will be seen at the Lexington Opera House for a special matinee and a night performance on Friday, March 21, together with his Highlander's Bagpipe Band, his big symphony orchestra and his company of international celebrities of the European capitals.

Lauder is now making his first journey through the South, and is taking on the atmosphere of the conquering progress of a royal potentate rather than of a stage star, even a stage idol such as this wonderful Scottish genius, who is the highest paid entertainer of all the history of the stage anywhere. In Lexington he is to be greeted and feted, and lionized at public receptions by Mayor Cassidy and the prominent Scots and officials of the city.

This is Lauder's fifth tour of America, and in this period he has established records everywhere for attendance and popularity. He is the most imitated performer in stage annals. His phonograph records have sold into the millions in America, England and every foreign nation, and he had the credit for outselling Caruso something like twenty to one in these popular mediums of home entertainment.

Mail orders are now being filled by Manager Chas. Scott, of the Lexington Opera House, and the demand is as heavy as might be expected for a star of such magnitude. The prices will be 50 to $1.50 at matinee, and 50 cents to $2 at the night performance.

J. Will Clay Announces for Senator.

In this issue of the News appears the announcement of Hon. J. Will Clay, of Montgomery county for the Democratic nomination as Senator of the Twenty-Eighth Senatorial District composed of the counties of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery.

Under the rotation agreement which has long been observed in this district it is Montgomery's time to furnish the nominee and it is most likely neither Bourbon nor Clark will put a candidate in opposition to Montgomery's claim.

Mr. Clay is a native of Bourbon county, removing from this county to Montgomery at the age of six. He is prominently connected, being a descendant of the late Dr. John Clay, and is a brother of Hon. M. C. Clay, now Insurance Commissioner of Kentucky.

There is not a more deserving Democrat in Montgomery county than Mr. Clay, and he is thoroughly equipped for the high honor which he seeks. He is an active and progressive farmer, a shrewd business man, and understands to a marked degree the needs of the district. He has served two terms in the Legislature as representative from Montgomery county, with great credit and general satisfaction to the people of his home county.

Warehouse Company to Increase Stock.

With a view of increasing its capital stock a meeting of the stockholders of the Bourbon Tobacco Warehouse Company has been called for Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the court house.

The local company which began operation last November has succeeded to a degree surpassing the expectations of the most sanguine and will pay a handsome return on the investment.

The capacity of the warehouse and the facilities for handling tobacco have proven inadequate and to meet the increased needs of the warehouse it has been decided to increase the capital stock of the company from $35,000 to $50,000, looking toward additional improvements.

In order to do this it will require the written consent of two-thirds of the stockholders in the concern and for this purpose and also a discussion of other plans the meeting has been called.

The ideal carriage horse is the American trotting bred horse, with size, speed, courage, and the true trotting gait, with plenty of knee and hock action. In addition he must have a clean cut head and neck, style and finish, plenty of substance without coarseness.

Recognizing the demand for this class of horses, I selected Taylor Simmons 23489, a young horse which fills all the requirements of the typical carriage horse. If the theory that "like begets like" be true, he will produce horses of this type when mated with good mares. Through his veins flow the blood of the greatest trotting families. He traces twice to George Wilkes and five times to Mambrino Chief II. This is backed by the stout thoroughbred blood of Boston.

A few of the fancy priced ones sired by Taylor Simmons: Thendara, winner in the walk-trot class at the Blue Grass Fair in 1907, Louisville Horse Show and in the East, sold by Col. C. L. Dickens Most Widely Known.

If it be true to say of any author that everybody has read him, that author is Dickens. WITH BRICKS OF GOLD

LITTLE MEXICAN TOWN OF MAZAPIL IS SAID TO BE PAVED.

Discovery Made by American Mining Engineer Results in the Purchase by Company of All the Property They Could Buy.

If Dick Whittington had only lived today he might have found the city whose streets were paved with gold. For recent investigation has brought to light the fact that such a place does exist, and that there is marvelous wealth in the little Mexican town of Mazapil.

Imagine the bricks of the pavement being full of gold and estimated from $500 to $600 to the ton! And there is a single wall about a garden in front of the town hall which is valued at a million dollars!

It seems that not long ago an American mining engineer was roaming through that country, and when he came back into civilization he brought with him a few bricks and some samples of slag. He was not sure if they were worth anything at all, and never dreamed of their real value, but he turned them over to his company's assayer.

The assayer's report was startling. If there was more of the same stuff to be had, he said, untold wealth was in sight, and immediately the company started an investigation. It was found that the assayer's estimate was not exaggerated. The streets of Mazapil were literally paved with gold, and a high percentage of silver, too, and some of the baser metals, such as copper, lead and zinc.

Of course it did not take many days before the little town was being deluged with the company's representatives, who proceeded promptly to buy up every inch of available property. The natives, ignorant of the value, sold out for a song. The company purchased all the old smelters and slag piles and dilapidated walls and buildings. It even bought up the postoffice.

The only thing which they could not get was the Roman Catholic church. The priests refused positively to sell, and no amount of money seemed to tempt them. In vain did the representatives offer higher prices. They were forced to be content without the church.

Then, just as they were on the verge of removing the bricks and slabs to the modern smelters, the Mexican revolution started, and all operations along that line had to be suspended. But it is needless to say that every inch of the little town is being carefully guarded for the future use of the fortunate company.

Her Last Chance.

"You can't deny it," he said sternly. "Penelope, you've been chewing gum again!"

Desperately, frantically, she sobbed on his chest.

Firmly lifting her off the chest and depositing her on the sofa, he dashed the beads of agony off his brow. They fell on the hardwood floor with a metallic clatter.

"I warned you," he continued, "that I would break off our engagement if I caught you at it again. A girl that chews gum is no fit wife for a man. A girl that chews gum would take in a matinee with the butcher money. Penelope, all is over between us."

With a final outburst of desperation she was on his chest again, pleading, begging, beseeching for the love of Mike.

"One more chance," she cried, "and I swear another drop of gum shall never pass these lips."

"So be it," he replied. "One more chance."

And reaching grimly for his hat, he departed, pausing on the doorstep only long enough to bite off a fresh chew of tobacco.—Detroit Free Press.

Task for Naval Officers.

Naval officers are not often called upon to perform such a delicate task as that set out in a circular which emanates from the French ministry of marine. It runs thus:

Ruyter Warfuss has bequeathed to the town of Houlon a legacy destined to promote marriage between an orphan girl of good character and a sailor of proved sobriety, the former to be selected by the mayor of Toulon and the latter by the senior captain of the squadron of vessels now anchored at Toulon.

Would-be candidates for the legacy must send a statement of their qualifications accompanied by documentary evidence to this office not later than December 25.

The couple selected must, according to the terms of the will, be married on the forthcoming feast of the Epiphany and undertake to have at least four children.—New York Sun.

The operation was successful; also the patient was dead.

WILL MAKE IRON BOIL

SCIENTIFIC MEN SUCCEED IN PRODUCING FIERCE HEAT.

Granulated Aluminum Mixed With Oxide of Iron Resulted in a Temperature of 3,000 Degrees Centigrade, the Record.

For some years past scientific men have been striving to produce heat fiercer than any temperature of which we have experience in ordinary life. The greatest heat ever developed by the agency of man was obtained by Sir Andrew Noble, who exploded cordite in closed vessels, so that a pressure of 50 tons to the square inch was registered and a degree of heat never previously recorded.

The highest temperature reached in fuel furnaces for practical purposes is between 1,700 and 1,800 degrees centigrade, and at such a heat fire clay and porcelain are melted. Then we come to the flame fed with and coal gas; by these means a temperature of 2,000 degrees centigrade may be obtained.

A new industry solely dependent upon the employment of great heat is that of melting quartz. This mineral, fused by the oxy-hydrogen flame, is converted into tubes and flasks and other vessels for chemical purposes. These vessels are absolutely inert, and may be heated hundreds of degrees higher than is possible with glass; they may also be plunged at such heat into cold water without injury.

It has been discovered that by whirling a centrifugal wheel at high velocity in the combustion chamber of a furnace the nitrogen is cast to one side, while the oxygen is concentrated, and in this way a brighter flame and greater heat are obtained. A similar appliance used during the combustion of coal in a furnace enables a firm of paper-makers to save 27 per cent. of their coal bill by the elimination of hydrogen gas formed in combustion.

But most remarkable of all the phases of the utilization of extreme heat is the discovery of the welding material known as thermit. The inventor discovered that aluminum is very much attracted to oxygen, and holds it closer than a brother. Therefore he mixed granulated aluminum with oxide of iron, for the lighter metal wants oxygen, and the quantity of magnesium filings was placed on top of the mixture and a storm-match applied, and immediately a mass of molten iron was being boiling at a temperature of 3,000 degrees centigrade—much higher than any temperature in ordinary use.

Handicap in Golf.

An unusual golf handicap was played on one of the local links recently, the proponent of the same winning hands down. One of the rules of golf is that one must not talk to a player when he is about to make a drive, nor must others discuss any subject in his hearing. It might take his mind off the game for just an instant and that might be fatal.

In Kansas City lives a crack but extremely nervous golf enthusiast. He had been in the habit of beating a fat and phlegmatic friend until the latter tired of it.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," the friend said not long ago. "I'll play you eighteen holes if you will give me a handicap."

"Done," said the nervous player.

"Name the handicap."

"Three times during the game, and not more than three, I am to be permitted to stand behind you and say 'Boo' while you are preparing to drive."

Every time it was the nervous man's play his fat friend walked up and just stood behind him. Never once during the game did the fat man say "Boo!" or anything else. But the anticipation of the expected "Boo!" was fairly nerve-shattering, and the fat man won hands down.—Kansas City Journal.

Female Longevity.

Women are living longer than they did twenty-five years ago, but the doctors aren't agreed on the reason. Though all admit it isn't due to the spread of the suffrage movement, they are widely divided in their opinions about it. Statistics compiled in England show that the expectation of life of a woman of fifty is a year greater than it was in 1875, while that of a man is only a few months greater. One school of doctors, who believe that death is due entirely to a wearing out of brain tissues, says the greater longevity of women is due to the fact that they don't use their brains as much as men. On the other side of the scientific fence is a group of doctors who insist that women live longer now because she is more sheltered than man; doesn't have to face the wearing competition of business that he has to endure and that she spends most of her time at home, which is more airy and healthful than the offices where men work.

Rest for All.

"I see that you are going to give your pastor a vacation."

"Yes."

"But why?"

"He needs a rest."

"But you are going to give him a six-months vacation."

"Yes."

"And why?"

"Say, don't you think we need a rest, too?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUSBAND RESCUED
DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

TO STOP SLAUGHTER

Audubon Societies Want Tariff Wall to Bar Out Aigrettes.

National Association Demands Action on Part of Ways and Means Committee—Seek to End Destruction of Beautiful Herons.

New York.—Backed by farmers, sportsmen and women's clubs in every section of the country, officers of the National Association of Audubon Societies have demanded of the ways and means committee of congress an opportunity to urge a prohibitive tariff on aigrette feathers at the hearing on schedule N, which will be held before the end of this month.

Opposing the moneyed interests of the millinery wholesalers, whose inroads on the valuable bird life of New York, Louisiana, Missouri, New Jersey, Oregon and California have already forced these states to pass laws making contraband the sales of these plumes, the national Audubon delegation will ask that they be excluded from the whole country in the interest of everyone dependent upon its agricultural prosperity.

The Federation of Women's Clubs and organizations of grangers in almost every state, as well as the Camp-fire club, the New York Zoological society, the Long Island Sportsmen's association, the American Game Protective association and other bodies of sportsmen, have pledged their support to this movement.

Data, obtained from scientific observation of a flock of the few herons that still survive the wholesale butchery of professional plume hunters in an Audubon breeding rookery in Florida, are being prepared to demonstrate to congress that these rare birds are a considerable factor in the destruction of field mice, gophers, grasshoppers and other agricultural pests.

While in some instances they have been found to devour an occasional trout, their regular diet is proved to consist principally of minnows, suckers and other useless fish, as well as water snakes, that are known to destroy great quantities of trout eggs and valuable young fish. Other proof of the natural need of farmers and fishermen for the beautiful birds that the milliners have almost driven to extinction will be presented by representatives of these interests.

Following the recent introduction by Senator Root of a resolution empowering the president of the United States to call an international congress on bird protection, representatives of the world powers actively engaged in saving the rare species that is being massacred for their aigrette plumes are now expressing to the Audubon organization their support of this movement.

While the whole globe is at present scoured for these trophies, taken from butchered mother birds for market here, a tariff ban would do much toward saving the beautiful heron from world-wide destruction, it is asserted.

"With the people of the United States of almost every class united to bar from our country the aigrettes of the unfortunate heron, we expect to meet the big millinery interests in sole opposition before the congressional committee," said T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, at its headquarters, 1974 Broadway.

"The slaughter of these useful and beautiful birds is a commercial matter only to the men who sell their scalps in those states where this shameful traffic is not already forbidden by law. Congress should certainly recognize the sentiment and interests of the whole people, who ask it to end this importation as a matter of humanity as well as economic and agricultural benefit."

NEW EXPLOSIVE IS TESTED

Smokeless, Odorless and Has a Greater Penetrative Force Than Dynamite or Cordite.

London.—Military experts who have been experimenting with the new explosive "powerite," the discovery of a young inventor of Sydney, N. S. W., predict that it will revolutionize the use of small arms and artillery in warfare.

Cheapness, greater driving force, increased penetration, no smoke, no smell, no recoil and no danger in transportation, are among the virtues claimed for "powerite," the composition of which is, of course, a secret. Cartridges containing 30 grains of the new explosive were fired in competition with cordite cartridges, fitted with the usual service charge of 35 grains.

The "powerite" projectiles penetrated eight inches into the target, as against five inches for the cordite. Fired into sand boxes, "powerite" forced its way 18 inches, and cordite only ten. After testing its force on a sunken ship in Thayer bay, the officer in charge reported that three pounds of "powerite" was equal to ten pounds of dynamite.

The Sydney invention looks like cotton and burns with a harmless puff of flame when a match is applied. Revolver shots may be fired into it at short range without danger of explosion, and it is further claimed that it is unaffected by heat, cold, moisture or age. Exclusive use of "powerite" by the British government has been offered by the inventor, and will probably be accepted.

BIG SUM FOR REMBRANDT

John N. Willys Buys "The Praying Pilgrim" for $250,000 in Chicago.

Chicago.—Rembrandt's painting, "The Praying Pilgrim," regarded as one of the most valuable examples of his art, has been sold by a Chicago art dealer, to John N. Willys of Toledo, O., for $250,000. The picture has been taken to Toledo by Mr. Reinhardt and will be delivered to Mr. Willys, who will lend it for six months to the Toledo Museum of Art.

The picture was obtained by the Chicago dealer from the private gallery of Maurice Kahn in Paris, where it hung for many years. There were four Rembrandts in the Kahn collection, and upon the death of their owner two years ago collectors from all over the world visited Paris to bid for the famous paintings. America was successful in obtaining three.

"The Praying Pilgrim" was painted in 1661 and is two and a half feet wide and three feet high. It depicts a pilgrim kneeling bareheaded with clasped hands and upraised features, lighted by a deep spiritual vision. The hat of the pilgrim lies on a rude table at his side and his staff is dimly discernible in the background. A deep golden brown color predominates.

UNCLE SAM OPPOSES TIPS

Will Not Pay Bill of $80.45 Spent by Officer on Visit to Germany.

New York.—Capt. Matthew E. Hanna, U. S. A., who recently resigned from the army to enter business in this city, has discovered that the government does not believe in tips. Captain Hanna, as a member of the general staff, witnessed the German army maneuvers as guest of the emperor in 1911, and on his visit spent $80.45 in tips to waiters and hotel servants.

It was said that the total bill of $319 which he turned in was only half of what it cost him to maintain his part of the dignity of the United States representative during his visit, and in this he had included the tipping item.

After considerable correspondence the treasury department has finally ruled that Captain Hanna must stand the tipping expense himself.

Why Snow Is Warm.

Snow is warm by virtue of its light and woolly texture. But it is also warm on account of its whiteness. Had snow been black it would have absorbed the heat of the sun and melted quickly. Instead, it reflects heat, and the reflected heat falls upon bodies above the snow, while the warmth of the earth is preserved beneath it.

MAIL FAST; BLOCKS SUICIDE

Friends, Informed by Letters, Halt West Norristown (Pa.) Man's Death Plans.

Norristown, Pa.—The United States mail was too fast for Robert Mulfinger, sixty-five years old, a wealthy business man of West Norristown township, and to this he owes the fact that he is alive. Mulfinger planned to commit suicide and he wrote letters to a local undertaker and a local banker about his burial and his last wishes. They received the letters so promptly that they found Mulfinger lying in his bathroom with a tube connected with the gas fixture in his mouth. He was revived and demanded to know why they had saved his life.

Mulfinger lost money recently in investments and he got the idea that he was going to the poorhouse. He preferred death to that fate.

Ask Order Restraining Postmaster General

Counsel for the New York Journal of Commerce at Washington Tuesday applied to the Supreme Court to restrain Postmaster General Burleson from immediately enforcing the "newspaper publicity law." Former Postmaster General Hitchcock had agreed not to attempt to enforce the law pending a prompt appeal to the Supreme Court from the decision of the Federal Courts in New York.

Robert G. Morris, counsel for the Journal of Commerce in a statement to the Supreme Court declared that on March 4 the postmaster of New York had notified the paper that unless the statements required by the law were filed at once, he would proceed to enforce its penalties. Similar letters, the attorney charged, had been sent to other newspapers throughout the country. Since March 4, Attorney Morris declared Postmaster General Burleson had informed him formally that unless the required returns were made on or before March 11, he would enforce the penalties which include disbarment from the mails.

The Supreme Court has had the validity of the law under consideration for several months, but has announced no decision. The court took the motion of Mr. Morris under advisement.

Showed Up Express Company.

A specific case has been found at Milwaukee in which an express company took advantage of the parcel post to save itself trouble, and collect a good profit on Uncle Sam's activities. The case has been laid before the postal authorities, but it is not thought any action can be taken.

The specific shipment was a box of cigars from Detroit to Milwaukee, in which a Detroit man, about to visit here, decided to test out a suspicion that the express companies were using the parcel post. He addressed the box to a Milwaukee friend and paid forty cents for the shipment. When he reached here he found the package delivered by the parcel post, bearing 22 cents in postal stamps. The express company had made 18 cents on the shipment.
